German Delegates Leave For London Conference

Important Week-End Conference of Anglo-French

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Eight German delegates to the conference with Allies in London, headed by Foreign Minister Simon, accompanied by a staff of some fifty secretaries and clerks, and a party of several German newspaper men, left Berlin unostentatiously today on a special train, en route to England. Chancellor Fehrenbach and many of the lesser government officials had the delegation farewell at the station.

U. S. Immigration

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The conference report on the Immigration Bill was adopted yesterday by the House and Senate, and the measures sent to the President. It would limit immigration for fifteen months, from next April, to from one to three per cent of nationals of the various countries who were in the United States at the time of the 1919 census.

Forged Passports

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Forged passports to enable dangerous aliens to enter the United States are being issued in almost every European country, it was announced yesterday at the State Department.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—On the virtual eve of the Allied Conference with the Germans on reparations and disarmament questions, two principal Allied military chiefs, Marshal Foch of France and Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, British Chief of Staff, spent the week-end, by invitation, with Lloyd George and Premier Briand of France, in their seclusion at Chequers Court, the new country home of the Prime Minister of England. The purpose of the consultation was to reduce to a definite form the various proposals for application of military and economic pressure sufficient to change the mind of Germany, should her government refuse the reparations terms of the Allies.

Shackleton Is Right

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Sir Ernest Shackleton returned to England yesterday. Sir Ernest's attention was called to the fact that shortly after he had predicted a "broken winter" the heaviest blanket of snow for the winter fell. The explorer replied that he still maintained he was right. "One issued in almost every European country," he said, "no more does one good snow storm make a winter either."

STATE TROOPS CALLED TO QUELL RIOTS IN ALBANY.

Albany Unit, New York State Troopers.

State troopers are on duty in the streets of Albany, the New York State capital, to guard against continuance of the rioting which marked the attempts of the United Traction Company to operate its cars with strikebreakers. The request for troopers was made after scores of people were injured.

GERMANY'S DEATH SENTENCE BY OWN HAND, SAYS KAISER

"My People Betrayed Itself, Its God, and Me," He Declares

A SLAP AT ITALY

Declares He Intentionally Showed Fleet to Victor Emmanuel in 1913.

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—I am able to-day to make public for the first time the only interview with former Kaiser Wilhelm since he crossed the German boundary into Holland. The circumstances under which the interview was obtained are given below.

Some of the former War Lord's most striking statements and phrases were:

"I never wished the war."

"My people has betrayed itself; its God and me."

"The whole world has denied God."

"We would never have lost the war if the German people had remained true to themselves."

"The Socialists are chiefly guilty."

"The world looked different then (1888) than now."

"It wasn't without intention that I showed the Italian, Victor Emmanuel, in July, 1913, my fleet in Kiel."

"Notice how God scourges the world—all evil renews itself here on earth."

"The sword of peace was struck out of my hand by my best friends."

In answer to a question as to why Germany lost the war, the Kaiser said: "We would never have lost the war if my people remained true to themselves. I always assert with Martin Luther 'If the world were full of devils who would swallow us up, we still would succeed if we did not fear for ourselves.' We had already overcome hunger and need—despite the fact that America had joined hands with our eternal enemy, Britain. The betrayal of Germany signified her death sentence."

"And notice how God scourges the whole world—all evil renews itself here on earth."

"The sword of peace was struck out of my hand by my best friends."

DUBLIN, Feb. 27.—Reliable details of Friday's ambush at Maccroom and the fight which followed it are still lacking. It is believed, however, that the casualties reported are exaggerated.

DUBLIN, Feb. 27.—Incident reported to-day in hostilities between Crown Forces and Irish insurgents included the discovery of an extensive preparation for an attack upon the police barracks at Clontarf, County Dublin, in which roads had been blocked, and rails removed from railway tracks and line diverted. The attack, it is announced, proved abortive as the police were prepared for it.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—The Michigan Central Railroad officially announced tonight that between thirty and forty persons had been killed in a wreck at Porter, Ind. An unknown number of persons were injured, officials said. Relief trains were sent from here and from Michigan City, Ind. The wreck occurred when train No. 20 on Michigan Central derailed and collided with a New York Central train. The New York Central officially announced that two men had been killed. The Michigan Central train left Chicago at five o'clock for East. Officials of both roads said the actual cause of the wreck could not be determined, but it was presumed that the Michigan Central train either ran into a closed switch or else the rails spread as the two trains were passing each other. The Michigan Central and the New York Central use the same tracks out of Chicago.

TOKIO, Feb. 27.—Japanese forces will evacuate Siberia in March, says Kokumin Shinbun. Confirmation of this report is not as yet available in official quarters.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 27.—The arrest of three women and the recovery of forty thousand dollars stolen from a mail car of the Northern Pacific train on Feb. 18th, is announced by Federal officers. Those arrested are Mrs. Alice Hendricks, forty; Mrs. Grace MacDonald, twenty, her daughter, and Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, twenty-seven, a cousin. According to the officers the money was found in a locker in Mrs. Anderson's apartment.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Federal Prohibition Agents raided sixty-four cafes and cabarets, many of them in White Light District yesterday, taking more than fourteen hundred prisoners and seizing a large quantity of alcoholic beverages. The raids which began simultaneously at three o'clock in the afternoon extended over a period of five hours and included places in Manhattan Brooklyn and Staten Island. The raiders, about fifty in number, were brought to New York from Boston, Philadelphia and New Jersey cities for this particular raid.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 27.—One hundred persons were driven from their homes and several badly injured by the violence of an explosion of a tank containing five thousand gallons of gasoline here to-day. Directly following the explosion block and streets surrounding it changed into a sea of flames. Windows of more than thirty houses were broken and many smaller structures were shaken down. Several of the homes were almost wrecked. When flames started shooting up in all directions around the block the Fire Dept. was called and flushed much of the burning gasoline into sewers. The loss to the Oil Co. is placed at one thousand, while that to the homes nearly total one hundred thousand.

DUBLIN, Feb. 27.—That General Sir Nevil McReady, Commander of the Crown Troops in Ireland, was a victim in an ambush a fortnight ago at Merrion Gates, behind the walls of the Merrion Blins Asylum, and still is suffering from a bullet wound in his shoulder, is a report circulated in Sinn Fein circles to-day. Confirmation of the report, however, has been impossible up to the present.

PANAMA, Feb. 27.—Hostilities between Panama and Costarica threaten the possibilities of developing in a conflict involving all Central America and Columbia. It is learned officially that President Porras has signed a proclamation declaring war against Costarica, but is holding it temporarily in abeyance.

White Race in Heart of Africa

Ethnologist Just Returned to England After Visit Clears up the Mystery

Men and Women are Very Handsome and are Wood-Carving Wonders

From time immemorial writers of tales of mystery and adventure have dwelt in some parts of Central Africa fertile field, and many fine books, such as "Allan Quatermain" and "People of the Mist," have been built on the legend the East African natives still tell, and in which they firmly believe, of a white race that but still extant in the very heart of the interior of Africa.

The legends are tantalizing, and taken in conjunction with the presence of the Somali people, who absolutely refuse to consider themselves natives, set one dreaming of the lost tribes of Israel.

But there is, I think, a much more logical explanation of the legends which the natives relate seldom, but always with the same sure touch and significance of detail.

Wood-Carving Wonder
Before giving the explanation, however, I must call attention to a curious matter which, for long past, has puzzled white men stationed or resident in East Africa, and which is connected with native craftsmanship.

Almost every East African native is addicted to wood-carving and exceptionally skillful with his knife. In their spare time the natives make the most ornate walking sticks, fashioning the handle frequently in the shape of a man or woman. The faces of both figures are essentially Egyptian in features and character, and the woman is always portrayed with clothes and coiffure of ancient Egyptian fashion.

This was the most surprising, as many of the carvers have never seen an Egyptian, nor for that matter, journeyed north of the Equator.

Mr. Roscoe's Discovery
That matter has, however, been cleared up by the Rev. John Roscoe, who has just returned to England from a year's sojourn in the Bunyoro district, which borders the eastern shore at Lake Albert in the Northern Province of Uganda.

Mr. Roscoe, who is one of our greatest ethnologists, has now proved beyond all possibility of question, that an Asiatic people (Semites) traversed the Nile from Egypt, which died out elsewhere a thousand years ago, but which still survive in some parts of Central Africa, and, incidentally, they almost certainly instituted stick-carving on the present pattern.

It is stated that this tribe has kept itself almost entirely separate from other tribes, and that the men and women, who are light brown in color, are very handsome, even when judged by our standards.

The fact that these people are light in color, European in appearance and exclusive, and that they must originally have travelled right through Central Africa, long ago, bringing with them new and strange customs is quite enough to account for the East African legend that a white race is still extant in the interior.

Quite recently, an American explorer, returned from a sojourn in the African wilds, electrified the ethnologists by announcing that he had discovered an entirely new race of pigmy negroes in the forest mass bordering the Semliki River between Lake Albert and Lake Edward.

Descendants of the Aztecs
This American stated that his pigmies were known to other natives as the Mbatti, and were not in any way to be confused with the Wambatti, a race of pigmies discovered by Stanley in the same locality.

This statement has a distinctly amusing side, since in the Swahili language "M" is the singular and "Wa" the plural prefix to the same proper noun.

In South America the legend has survived, for many generations, of the Golden City, which the Elizabethan adventurers sought in vain among the mountains of Matto Grosso, the westernmost and least known province of Brazil.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

How It Happened.

His lips trembled as he tried to answer her.

"I cannot throw off sorrow as you can, mother; I am talking to you about that which will make the misery or the happiness of my life, and you think of nothing but a boat."

"Words are so useless, Lance," repeated my lady; "they are but empty sounds. I am going out to look for some cameos; I think I should like a set, they are very elegant and recherche."

So saying, my lady left the room as though no serious thoughts occupied her mind.

Then, for the first time, something like impatience with his fate came over the young lord, something like impatience with Leone, for whose love he had so much to suffer. He loved his proud, beautiful mother, who had, unknown to him, such great influence over him. He could not endure the thought of life-long separation from her. The glamour of a boy's first mad love had fallen from him, and he saw things as they were; he could estimate better than he had done before, what it meant to give up father, mother and friends all for one love.

He did not recover his spirits all day; but the temptation never once came near him to break his word or forget Leone. That night, one of the loveliest that ever dawned on earth they were all going to a fate given by the Countess Spizla, and one part of the entertainment was that the beautiful grounds were to be illuminated.

Lord Chandos had never seen his mother look so proud, so brilliant or so handsome as on that night. She wore a superb dress of green, velvet, with a suit of diamond worth a king's ransom. Lady Marion wore a dress of rich lace, with cream color roses and green leaves. He felt was well attended; a great number of French people and English were there. The earl declined. Moonlight gardens and illuminated grounds had not much attraction for him.

Lord Chandos sat for some little time by his mother's side; he was enjoying an ice, and as he watched her he felt a sensation of pride in her beauty—a keen sense of regret that they should ever be parted.

An involuntary cry of admiration came from the countess, and Lord Chandos looking in the direction where her eyes were fixed, saw Lady Erskine. Never had the great queen of blondes looked so lovely; the fine, fairy-like well of costly lace fell in graceful folds around a figure that stood alone for grace and symmetry. She wore nothing but green leaves in her golden hair; her arms, bare to the shoulders, were white, firm, and statuesque. Over her face, when she saw Lord Chandos, came a beautiful brilliant flush.

The countess and her son were sitting in one of the pretty salons, where some of the famous works of art were collected. There was an exquisite bust of Clytie which attracted much attention; they had been commenting on it, and Lady Lanswell was saying how much she would like a copy of it.

"Here comes something more beautiful than Clytie," she said, as Lady Marion advanced to meet them.

She made room for the young heiress by her side. Lady Marion had schooled herself well, but her task was no easy one—she was so candid, so loyal, so true in all her dealings, that the least attempt at anything savoring of deception was unpleasant to her; still she would, of course, do anything to help Lady Lanswell. So she sat down by her side and talked with her usual gentle grace.

She said, after a time:

"Lady Lanswell, I have a great favor to ask of you. If you do not wish to go back to England just yet, will you join me? I am trying to persuade Lady Cambrey to make a tour through Spain."

She drew a long breath of relief when the words were spoken, she was so thankful to have them said and done with. He mentally resolved that never would she promise to do anything of this kind again. Lady Lanswell's calm restored hers.

"To Spain?" repeated the countess. "What a traveler you are Lady Marion. What has put Spain into your mind?"

"I have always longed to see the Alhambra," said Lady Marion, with perfect truth. "As we are so near, it would be a pity to go back without seeing it."

"I quite agree with you. It may be some years before you come on the Continent again—you are quite right to go to Spain. And you really wish us to join your party?"

"Certainly, I should be delighted; it would increase my pleasure a hundred fold," replied the young heiress, promptly.

"You are very kind to say so. I will go if you can persuade Lord Chandos to go with us."

"How can I do that?" she asked with a smile. "Teach me how to persuade," Lady Lanswell. I have never been able to persuade," any one."

The countess rose from her seat with a light laugh.

"I am afraid that in this case, persuasion, argument and reason would be in vain. Lance, take Lady Marion to see the lamps in the almond trees—they are really very fine."

He took the soft, silken wrapper from her and wrapped it round her shoulders.

"Let us go and see the lamps," he said, and they went.

Ah, well. The sky above was filled with pale, pure stars; the almond-trees filled the air with delicate perfume; the nightingales were singing in the distant trees; great floods of silver moonlight fell over the grounds in which the lilies gleamed palely white, and the roses hung their heavy heads.

They went together to the grove where the lamps shone bright as huge pearls. The path was a narrow one and he drew the white hand through his arm. How did it come about? Ah, who shall tell? Perhaps the wind whispered it, perhaps the nightingales sung about it, perhaps something in the green white lily leaves suggested it, perhaps the pale, pure stars looked disapproved; but it happened that the white hand felt the arm, and was clasped in a warm, strong hand—a clasp such as only love gives.

Who shall say how it happened? She raised her fair face to his in the soft, pure moonlight, and said to him:

"Must you really go back to England, Lord Chandos?"

The voice was sweet as music—the face so fair, so pure, so proud.

"Must you," she added "really go?"

"Yes, I am compelled to return," he answered slowly.

"Need it be yet?" she said. "I know you must go, but the journey through Spain will be so pleasant, and we might make a compromise. I will shorten the journey if you will delay your return."

And before he had left the almond grove Lord Chandos had promised to do so, and as he made the promise he bent down and kissed the white hand lying in his.

CHAPTER XXIX. Waiting For Him.

Never had June seen such roses, never had lilies opened such white chalice, never had the trees looked so green or the grass so long and thick, never had the birds sung as they sung this June, never had the light of the sun been so golden bright. The smile of the beautiful summer lay over the land, but in no place was it so air as in River View. It was a scene like fairy-land.

So Leone thought it as she watched day by day the beauty of blossom and leaf. It was in the month of May when she first began to watch the signs of coming summer; with the first breath of the hawthorn, her heart grew light and a new beauty of hope came in her face. It was May and he was coming in June. She worked harder than ever. She rose early and retired late; these months of hard study and hard reading had changed her more than she knew herself. One year ago she had risen a beautiful, strong healthy girl, full of fire, and life, and power. Now she was a refined, intellectual woman, full of genius and talent, full of poetry and eloquence, full of originality and wit; then she was a girl to be admired, now she was a woman who could rule a kingdom whose power was unlimited.

She had acquired more in these few months of study than some people in years. She knew how great his delight would be, and she smiled to think how entirely at her ease she should be, even with his stately lady mother; she should feel no great awe of her in the future, for if Heaven had not given her the position of a lady by birth she had herself one by study and refinement.

So he was coming, and their real marriage life was to begin. She thought with a shudder of the pain she had passed through, of the horror of that terrible discovery. It was all over now, thank Heaven. It had never been any brand or stigma to her; she had never felt any false shame over it; she had never bowed her bright head as though a blight had passed over her. She said to herself it was not her fault, she was not in the least to blame. She had believed herself in all honor to be the wife of Lord Chandos, and she could not feel that the least shadow of blame rested on her.

He was coming home. Through the long hours of the summer day, she thought of nothing else. True, since the month of June, his letters had been very few and much cooler. True, it had been a severe shock to her to hear that he had gone to Nice; but as his letters said nothing of Lady Marion, and she knew nothing even of the existence of such a person, that did not matter. Why had he gone to Nice when June was so near? She wrote to him to ask the question, but his answer was: Because his parents had gone there. Then she said no more; that seemed quite natural. The only thing that occurred to her was, he would have a longer journey in June; he would come to her as he had promised, but he would take a longer time in traveling.

Lose faith in him! She flung back her head, with a bright, proud laugh. No, nothing could shake her faith in him; his proud lady mother had managed to get him under her influence—what did that matter? He loved her and her alone. She remembered the words spoken on her wedding day; when she had asked him if he was quite sure their marriage was legal, his answer was, "Yes, and that nothing could part them except death."

How well she remembered those words, "except death"! He had taken her in his arms and kissed her, as though even death itself should not claim her. No shadow of fear entered her mind. She knew that he would come, as surely as she knew the sun would rise and the sky would dawn.

The thirtieth of June. No gift of second sight came to her, to tell her that on the twenty-seventh of June Lord Chandos had sat down and wrote her a very long letter, telling her that it was impossible for him to be at home on the thirtieth of June, as he had promised to go with his parents to Spain. A large party were going, and he must join them; but his heart would be with her on that day. He should think of her from dawn until sunset, and he would be with her soon. He was vexed that he had to take the journey; it was quite against his will, yet he had been over-persuaded. He should soon see her now; and whatever he did, she must not feel in the least degree distressed or put about. Their happiness was only delayed for a short time. A long letter. She had no gift of second sight; she could not see that his face burned with shameful flush as he wrote it; that for himself he had no pity; that his heart went out to her with a warmer love than ever, but that the fear of his mother's frown and the pain on Lady Marion's face kept him where he was.

CATHEDRAL FINANCE COMMITTEE MEETS

Yesterday after last Mass a meeting of the Cathedral Finance Committee was held at St. Bonaventure's College, at which the following gentlemen were present: Rt. Rev. Mons. MacDermott, Judge Kent, Hons. J. D. Ryan, Geo. Shea, D. A. Ryan, Judge Morris, Messrs. J. F. Parker, J. J. Tobin, J. V. O'Dea, C. O'N. Conroy, John Barron, W. J. Higgins, F. W. Bradshaw and W. J. Harris. His Grace the Archbishop presided, and in his opening remarks explained that he had called the Committee together to discuss the very grave situation that had arisen in consequence of the disastrous fire at the Palace on Saturday week. He explained to the Committee that whilst he had not had time up to the present to consider in what way the situation was to be dealt with, he felt that it was incumbent upon him to call the Committee together at the earliest possible moment in order to place conditions before them, and to seek their counsel and advice. The loss of the Palace had been a severe blow, not only to the Priests and to himself, but to the Catholic people of the Archdiocese, and particularly to the Catholic people of St. John's. It meant the passing away of an old, historic landmark, as the Palace was a link with their Catholic past, and a venerable building, around which clustered many hallowed reminiscences in their Church history. The Archbishop said that the Committee could more easily imagine than he could describe, what his feelings were, when, on the morning of Saturday week, he had seen the old building reduced to a heap of smouldering ruins. The Palace was a sacred heritage from the past, and was very dear to the Catholic people of St. John's who had grown up under its shadow. His Grace then went on to say that he had been not only deeply touched and moved, but greatly strengthened and sustained, in the trying days of the past week, by the many messages of sympathy that he had received from all sides, irrespective of class or creed. One of the most sympathetic and inspiring messages that had been sent was from a former member of the Finance Committee Lord Morris, who wired as follows: "Have just had cable of destruction: by fire of Roman Catholic Palace. I hasten tender you and through you our Catholic fellow-citizens my deep sympathy. The building has for generations been ever-present source of pride and happiness to Catholics of Newfoundland, and like the Cathedral, was a monument to our fathers, erected by them from their limited means in an age of great faith when numbers counted less than quality. I feel their sons will not allow the monument to remain 'unrestored'."

(Sgd.) MORRIS.

The Archbishop felt that message expressed what he felt to be the sentiments of Catholic citizens generally at the present time.

After stating that the Palace and furniture might be regarded as being a total loss, the Archbishop said that the first problem that confronted him on the morning after the fire, was to endeavor to provide a temporary accommodation for the Priests of the Cathedral. It was necessary that they should be at the scene of their work, and already a beginning had been made towards providing apartments for the Priests in the small building adjoining the Cathedral. The arrangements were necessarily of a temporary and unsatisfactory nature, but the Priests were quite prepared to face the inconvenience and the discomfort that must follow this accident for the next year or two. His Grace then stated that the problem of restoring or rebuilding the Palace, as might be afterwards decided upon was greatly complicated at the present time, owing to the heavy task they had in hand of completing the Cathedral repairs. Already, something over $50,000 has been spent within the past two years on the Cathedral, and it may be said the work has scarcely more than begun. A large fund had been subscribed a year and a half ago for the Cathedral repairs, but it did not reach half the amount that would be required to complete the work; were it not for that, the restoration of the Palace would not be attended with any serious difficulty. Meantime, the work of providing a suitable residence to replace the Palace, recently destroyed, will have to be undertaken in the near future. His Grace felt that the Catholic people of St. John's and of the Archdiocese generally, would not permit the Priests, who were serving them so faithfully and so well, to be subjected to the present inconvenience, longer than was absolutely necessary. His Grace then appealed to the Committee, and, through them, to the Catholic people, for their co-operation and support. A very heavy burden had been imposed upon him, in that he had practically to rebuild the Cathedral and rebuild the Palace, and without the loyal support and generous assist-

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Executive of the N. T. A. which has been postponed so long owing to the stormy weather, thus rendering it impossible for outport members to attend, was held at the Board of Trade Rooms Saturday afternoon. R. Dwyer, Esq., J.P., President of the Association, occupied the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted, after which the Secretary read his report for the year. This report showed the Association to be in the best condition financially and numerically since its inception. The Secretary reported an increase of over 300% in membership and subscriptions to the Teachers' Journal. The resolution of the Executive of last year—to appoint a Secretary to devote his whole time to the work of the Association—was thus thoroughly justified. In his report the Secretary, Mr. W. M. Butt, paid a warm tribute to the business men of the city, who had, by means of generous advertising in the Journal, been the means of making this part of the work of the Association self-supporting. In every person approached he had been met with the most cordial sympathy and generous support.

At the conclusion of the Secretary's report the Rev. Bro. J. E. Ryan in moving its adoption, paid a glowing tribute to the work of the Secretary. He compared the position of the Association at present with its position a year ago and expressed the belief that this was wholly due to the energy and untiring work of Mr. Butt. The report was seconded by Mr. W. J. Guilfoyle, who spoke along similar lines and added a few words of congratulation and praise.

The Secretary, in the absence of the Treasurer, gave the Executive the financial position of the Association. After the bills have been met there will be a substantial balance left to carry on the work of the Association for 1921. Many matters of educational interest then taken up and debated at considerable length such as teachers' augmentations, free and compulsory education, etc. A full report of these will be published in the February issue of the Journal. After the conclusion of the general business, the election of officers took place. The Rev. Bro. J. E. Ryan conducted the proceedings in his usual genial and happy manner. A hearty vote of thanks was given the officers for 1920. The officers for 1921 are:

Pres.—R. Dwyer, Esq., J.P.
1st V.P.—R. R. Wood, Esq., B.A.
2nd V.P.—Rev. Bro. P. V. Strapp.
Treas.—J. L. Samson, Esq.
Secretary—W. M. Butt, Esq.

Rev. Bro. Ryan congratulated the veteran, R. Dwyer, Esq., on being again re-elected President and expressed the feelings of the whole Executive when he hoped that he would be long spared to preside over the deliberations of the N. T. A. He felicitated each officer of the Executive on his appointment and then called on Mr. Dwyer to resume the chair. The officers for 1921 in short speeches thanked the Executive for their confidence and hoped that the coming year would be still more successful. The President then welcomed Messrs. Norman, Gill, Edgcombe and Jennings to the Executive. The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock.

ance of his people, he felt that the burden would be heavier than he could bear. The present meeting of the Committee, he announced, was merely a preliminary one, as up to the present time he had not had time to outline any plans or project for the future. He merely wished to submit the matter to the Committee, to ask them to give it their best consideration, and to make such suggestions and recommendations as they might consider the circumstances called for. In conclusion, he announced the appointment of two small Sub-Committees—one Building Committee, to go into the whole question of the restoration of the Palace; the other, a Finance Committee, to submit suggestions and plans for the financing of any work that might be undertaken. The following gentlemen were appointed to act on these Committees: The Building Committee: Sir M. P. Cashin, Hon. George Shea, Messrs. W. J. Higgins and F. W. Bradshaw. Finance Committee: Hons. J. D. Ryan, D. A. Ryan, Messrs. J. F. Parker and J. J. Tobin. When these Committees have time to investigate the matters referred to them, there will be a further meeting of the General Committee, when the reports of the Sub-Committees will be fully considered and future plans decided upon.

CHILDREN'S CARNIVAL MEETING OF PARISHIONERS

The children's Carnival took place in the Princes Rink on Saturday afternoon and was largely attended. The costumes were both original and artistic, and the little ones had an enjoyable afternoon. The various representations of local happenings were excellent, and the judges had much difficulty in awarding the prizes. At the conclusion however the first prize for the most original and best girls costume was awarded Miss Cynthia Marshall who represented a Chinese Lantern, whilst the 2nd prize was presented to Miss Edith Williams, Mail for St. Anthony by Aeroplane, was well worth recognition. With the boys the first prize was awarded Master R. Hayse, whose excellent make-up, represented "Seal Hunting by Aeroplane." "The 1921 Blockade," represented by Master J. Cousens, won second prize, the make-up being most original, and the details showed great care and attention. The judges were Mesdames H. W. Dickinson, A. Herder, H. Bishop, Capt. and Mr. L. Munn. The affair was the best of its kind for the season, and the management are to be congratulated on its success.

NEW BANK OPENS

The new Canadian Bank of Commerce building, just completed by the Dickie Construction Company on Water St., opposite the site of the old bank offices, was opened for business this morning. On Saturday afternoon there were many visitors to the new building who were shown through it by the obliging officials. The building is, both interiorly and exteriorly, one of the finest in the city and the offices and general appointments are such as to facilitate as far as possible the extensive operations of the institution.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1921.

THE HR. MAIN DECISION!

"Cashin's Defeated," Still Holds Good.

Nominations for the bye-election of Hr. Main, take place at Holyrood on Wednesday, March 2nd, and ten days after, the electors of that district will go to the Polls and record a majority vote for the Government candidates, Messrs. Hawco and Furey. In spite of the bombastic utterances of the Tory press and the vindictive and personal nature of the Tory campaign in the district itself, the election is going to put these men at the head of the Poll, and Hr. Main will this time be absolutely sure that it is going to be on the Government side. Sir M. P. Cashin, according to reports, is trying to "gull" Hr. Main with the story that at the coming session he would upset the Government and be Premier again, after disposing of both Messrs. Squires and Coaker! That is the "bluff," a bluff which is so hoary with age and decrepitude that it has become only a joke. Before the General Election, the Tory bluff was that no matter who was elected, Sir Michael would still be "in it." After the General Election, the Tories promised a "smash-up" in the Squires Government in three weeks; then it was stretched to six weeks, then to when the House met, then before the House rose, and throughout the Bye-Elections of St. John's West and Bay de Verde, the "Cashin Come Back" cry became positively ridiculous. But nothing of the kind has happened. The Squires Government is still in control and the Tories are still out in the cold where their own mismanagement, and extravagance brought them and from whence they will not emerge very soon. All the stories of a split in the Government are manufactured wholesale by the conscienceless group of Tories who are not men enough to take their medicine. We say that Hr. Main is going to elect Hawco and Furey, and the fact that S. O. S. calls have gone out to so many of the Tory politicians to go to the district to help Jones and Lewis shows that they feel that defeat is coming. Not even the most desperate means will save them. During the next week appeals of passion and prejudice will be made to the district of Hr. Main by Sir M. P. Cashin, Mr. W. J. Walsh, and others, and there is going to be no limit to the misrepresentations and false cries of these disappointed politicians. But Hr. Main will not budge, and the scores that are daily coming over to the cause of Hawco and Furey will continue to swell the ranks until the small majority of the Tory candidates in 1919 will be reversed and hundreds added in a substantial majority for the Government candidates. Just as we forecasted the victory in the General Elections, and in the bye-elections of St. John's West and Bay de Verde, so we assert that victory is already with Hawco and Furey in Hr. Main. The tide is with us, and it is now only a question of the majority.

A message on this page tells of a "knock-out" in Holyrood when a statement from Hon. W. R. Warren and Hon. S. J. Foote was read, which served to deny the false story spread by the Tories to the effect that they would join Sir M. P. Cashin if Jones and Lewis were elected. They express their loyalty to the Government and urge the election of Hawco and Furey, and thus one of the big guns of the Cashin-Morine Party is put out of commission.

HONS. W.R. WARREN AND S. J. FOOTE KILL THE TORY CAMPAIGN LIES

(Special to The Advocate)

HOLYROOD, Feb. 28.—The continued misrepresentation of the Opposition received a severe knock here yesterday, when Capt. Leo Murphy read signed statements from Hons. Warren and Foote completely denying the rumour spread through the head of the Bay that if Jones and Lewis were elected, Warren and Foote would leave the Government and go to the Cashin side. Foote and Warren express their loyalty to the Government and urge the election of Hawco and Furey.

STRAIGHT TICKET.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Representative Champ Clark, Democrat Leader of the House, was described as seriously ill in a bulletin issued yesterday by his physicians after consultation.

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—A circular letter was read in the Roman Catholic Churches of Ottawa yesterday, accompanied by petitions signed by thousands, against the proposed Legislation providing for the establishment of divorce courts in Ontario. Parliament is asked to abolish divorce in Canada, "as it is a moral and social evil which should not be legalized."

Big Union Meetings Are Addressed by R. G. Winsor M.H.A. THE SEALING LAWS DISCUSSED.

(Special to The Advocate)

GREENSPOND, Feb. 26.—Friend R. G. Winsor, M.H.A., arrived here yesterday after holding a very enthusiastic and impressive meeting at Safe Harbour the previous night. He arrived here at three p.m. Flags were hoisted at the F. P. U. premises and on the staff at the hall where a meeting was arranged to be held. The news was soon flashed around the harbour that Friend Winsor was here and intended to address the F. P. U. meeting at 7.30. When friend Winsor, accompanied by the chairman, entered the hall a splendid audience awaited his arrival. The meeting was opened in due form by the Chairman. Matters of business were dealt with, the Chairman then reading a circular letter from Hon. W. F. Coaker written from across the sea. The circular was well taken by all present and great interest displayed. Friend Winsor was then called on to address the meeting amid cheers and applause. He began to unfold the new gospel from home and foreign unionism—he spoke for an hour and forty minutes, delivering one of the finest addresses that Union men could wish to listen to. He dealt principally with the matters pertaining to the Government, and last but not least he read messages which were sent to and from the Hon. R. A. Squires, Prime Minister, relative to the arrangements made between the Government and the ship owners concerning the seal fishery, clearing up the fog and misunderstanding that prevailed amongst many of our Union men, and especially our enemies. He wanted to show our men that the law was being upheld by the Hon. R. A. Squires, Prime Minister, and interest taken in the seal fishery in the absence of Mr. Coaker, father of the Sealing Bill. Friend Winsor was followed by friend Peter Carter, Deputy Chairman, who backed up all and sundry in connection with Mr. Coaker and his work. The meeting closed at 11.30, when all wended their way home after enjoying the feast of knowledge and wisdom for the well being of the country in general and the good of all friends. Winsor and J. B. Wornell are proceeding to Shambler's Cove for a big Union meeting to-night.

J. B. WORNELL, Chairman.

LEVELLING THE GULCHES

Mr. Charles Lester has shown that ploughs can be used to good effect for purposes other than the cultivation of the soil. This forenoon he had a plough with two horses attached, engaged in levelling off the gulches and the results of his enterprise were such as to convince those who saw the work in progress that the best possible means of performing this very necessary work had been found. In a very short time the plough in question had levelled off several gulches, an operation which would have entailed at least three or four hours work by men with picks and shovels and it is to be hoped that this means of making the city streets passable will, now that it has proven itself efficacious, be employed largely in the future.

B. I. S. MEETING

The adjourned annual meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society was held yesterday and was largely attended. The Vice-President, Mr. J. C. Pippy, presided and nineteen applicants were admitted to membership.

Out of thirty nominees the following fifteen were elected members of the L. & A. Committee for the ensuing year: P. F. Moore, M.H.A.; J. C. Channing, C. J. Merner, D. J. French, W. Grace, N. J. Vintcombe, M.H.A.; John Fennessey, Peter O'Mara, Wm. Skinner, H. Pedgrew, A. B. Knight, J. Rawlins, Gordon Muir, E. J. Brophy, J. J. Spratt.

The officers of this committee will be appointed during the week and the annual meeting of the Society will be continued on Sunday after last Mass.

DR. JONES ON IBSEN'S PEER GYNT

The course of Lenten addresses on modern literature in its religious aspects has been somewhat interrupted by the illness of the preacher, but happily Dr. Jones is able to be at his post again, and last night delivered to a thronged church the second of these addresses, taking as his subject "Peer Gynt," or the Three Cross Roads of Life. Taking as a starting point the account in Acts 24 of the dramatic encounter of St. Paul with Felix, he showed how the indecision of character which marked the latter, had its counterpart in all ages, and cited Ibsen's creation of Peer Gynt as an instance in modern literature of a man whose indecision of character, made shipwreck of his life, though eventually by stern experience, and by the prayers of his wife and his mother, he found himself at last, and died a redeemed man. Dr. Jones' account of Peer in the kingdom of the Trolchs and the contest between the message of the Church Bells, "Be true to thy self," and the advice of the Great Boig "To thy self be enough." The scene at his mother's death bed; the night on the lonely moor, where the powers of nations reproach him, and the awful voice of his mother out of the darkness "Peer, you are drawing me away from God;" and the last scene, where with his old but faithful and praying wife, he enters into peace were thrilling and compelling. He appealed to all, especially to the young men and women in the congregation, not to obey the voice of the Trolchs, but to be true to themselves, to follow goodness, and to live as those dear to them who have passed on would have them. Altogether a remarkable and touching sermon.

Ibsen, say the critics, or some of them, is a master of moral diagnosis; he is not a physician. That is true, doubtless, if you consider only some of his dreams—say "Pillars of Society," "Rosmerholm," "The Wild Duck," perhaps "Emperor and Galilean," but surely "Peer Gynt" gives the remedy for the spiritual diseases of the modern world—Christianity, Restated, perhaps revived by contact with new conditions—but essentially the Catholic Religion of the Church. This is the only hope of the new century.

SOME SWEET SNOW

Saturday evening a man driving across LeMarchant Road extension upset his express and two bottles of whisky, worth $10, fell out and became broken on the hard surface of the snow. Young fellows about gathered up the booze-impregnated snow, transferred it to various receptacles, and after melting it down drank the decoction with keen enjoyment.

Jubilee Year For Sun Life

Among the annual reports so far this year one of the most interesting available is that of the Sun Life Assurance Company which is now celebrating with pardonable pride, its fiftieth anniversary. Apart altogether from its unique record in insurance annals of Canada of $106,000,000 of new business written up during the past year, a test from the actual figures as furnished by decades shows the remarkable effect of a momentum such as the Sun Life has gained in this country, and indeed in scores of other countries of the world, where it has branched out with results fully as impressive as in the case of Canada, the place of its birth.

Taking the year after its foundation, 1872, it is seen that the income was $48,210; its assets $96,461; and life insurance in force, $1,064,350. Eight years later the income had increased to $141,000, the assets to $473,000 and the insurance in force to $3,897,000. Roughly three, five and four times as great respectively. The next ten years showed totals that ran far ahead of these "times" for the income was eighteen times that of 1872; the assets twenty-five times, and the insurance in force about sixteen times. Twenty years later the income was some 180 times the original, assets nearly four hundred times, and insurance in force over one hundred and forty times that of 1872. Coming down to the year just passed it is seen that the original amount of income of $48,000 has expanded to $28,751,000; the assets of $96,000 to $114,839,000 and the insurance in force of a little over $1,000,000 is now over $486,000,000.

Nor does the company intend to rest where it stands to-day with its remarkable records, whether they be considered as percentages of growth or as straight totals, for in the annual report for the year 1920 which appears in this issue the whole tone is of a resolve that the year 1921 shall establish figures and records as yet untouched by this life insurance company, whose financial strength and progress even apart from its relation to insurance constitute a very real asset to Canada's business position before the world.

The Branch in Newfoundland has at its head, Mr. D. Johnston, whose untiring energy is greatly responsible for the good business which the Company is able to show for this country.

LOOKED LIKE THERE WAS NO HOPE FOR HER

Halifax Woman Had To Spend Most of Her Time In Bed Before She Got Tanlac—Gains 30 Pounds And Says Health Is Perfect Now.

"I had lost twenty-five pounds in weight and had reached the point where I didn't think I could ever get well, but in less than two months I have gotten back all my lost weight and five pounds besides and was never before in better health," said Mrs. William Muise, 22 West St., Halifax, N.S.

"It was a year ago that I suffered a general breakdown. I ate so little that I lost weight and became so weak that I broke down completely. I had bursting headaches that kept me in bed for days at a time and left me so weak that when I got up I could hardly walk."

"My stomach was upset and sour all the time, my nerves collapsed and at night I worried so over my condition that I could hardly sleep at all, and lots of mornings was unable to get out of bed. At last I looked like there was no hope for me.

"I have taken four bottles of Tanlac and to-day I am perfectly well in every respect. The stomach trouble has all disappeared and my big gain in weight shows what a splendid appetite I have and how well my food agrees with me. I am completely relieved of headaches and nervousness and sleep like a child. I can do my housework with ease and don't know that I ever felt better in my life."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Musgrave Harbor by T. W. Currie, in Joe Batt's Arm by Michael Hackett, in New Perlican by E. J. Green, in Point aux Basques by Edgar Hillier, in Dildo by Samuel J. Pretty, in Glovertown by Daniel Burton, in Old Perlican by Moses Bursley, in Lewisporte by Uriah Freak, in Holyrood by William Coady, in Morton's Harbor by A. W. Brett, in St. Brendan's by Wm. E. Hynes, in Bonne Bay by Butte Bros., in Brent's Cove by Jeremiah A. Sullivan.

FIRE DESTROYS COTTAGE

At 8.45 this morning an alarm of fire was received at the various stations from box 336 bringing the Western and Central firemen to Waterford Bridge Road where the residence of Mr. Peter Prunty, Manager of the Standard Oil Co.'s St. John's branch, was found to be in a blaze. Considering the condition of the streets and roads the fire fighters with their hose reels were on the scene quickly, the West End men, being nearer the scene of course, arriving first and followed with surprising promptness by the Central men. The fire had gained great headway by the time the firemen arrived and the building, a fine new house, was enveloped in flames. Notwithstanding this the men of both companies worked hard and had 1,700 feet of hose out in short order and connected with the fire plug near the General Protestant Cemetery. The water supply was good and a copious stream was thrown into the burning fabric but to little avail. The fire fiend had full control before much effective work could be done and the residence was totally consumed, only blackened ruin remaining after the greedy element held away for an hour or so. Mr. Prunty, we understand, lost most of his furniture and effects and his many friends in the city will sincerely sympathize with him in the disaster which has overtaken him. It is believed that the fire was caused as the result of the woodwork igniting from the hall stove.

The fire was a very destructive one, and all were in bed except the domestic when it happened. Mr. Prunty his two children and Mrs. Prunty slept on the second floor and Mr. Prunty was not aware of the presence of fire until smoke filled the rooms. Running out in his pyjamas he found that the house was in a mass of flames and reentering the room he wrapped the two little ones in blankets, and with nothing on his feet, ran with them to Mrs. McKean's, about 100 yards distant up the road when returning he did the same for Mrs. Prunty, who is very ill. Returning again he climbed to the second flat at the rear to if possible, secure some jewellery which was on a table there, and broke the window with a stick, but a sheet of flame shot out and he saw he could do nothing. His pants hanging in the room contained $240 in notes, there were also two handsome gold watches, one belonging to his wife and many other articles of jewellery which he values at about $4000, all being lost. Mr. and Mrs. Prunty and the children lost all their clothing and the McKean family had to supply them temporarily. Mr. Prunty drove to the temporary fire station and had to purchase a supply of clothing, boots, etc., at the Jackman's furnishing store. The girl, who had lit the kitchen fire, put some fuel in the hall stove which made the funnelling red hot, and while she was in the basement this ignited the woodwork. Had the fire occurred at night while all were asleep a terrible tragedy must have happened. From running over the snow and ice, Mr. Prunty suffered much. Although hard hit by the accident he is glad that all escaped with their lives. The house is owned by Mr. Cooney, and we learn is insured. Mr. Prunty, who besides cash and jewellery lost all his furniture has only insurance of $3,000, which represents only a small portion of his loss.

PROTECTED

Without doubt, sir, you are a man of thrift. This city needs such men, men to whom disaster from fire means nothing because of being protected by one of my policies that originally cost so little. How about yourself, good reader? Percie Johnson, The Insurance Man.

The work of clearing up the street car line was begun to-day, and it is hoped to have the service in full operation by the end of the week.

Just fancy, gentlemen for five dollars, ladies for two and a half, provide they are of English descent, can become identified with The St. George's Society. Let those proud of their race join immediately.

Mundy's Pond was proven to be frozen to the bottom last week. No water could be got from the pipes at the outlet which were frozen solidly. Other small ponds around the suburbs of the city are also frozen their entire depth.

Saturday the whippet tank, which had been for a week or more in the snow on Patrick Street, was taken back to Silverlock & Cullen's garage where it will be overhauled and its mechanism put in perfect order.

If any one wishes to do so they can donate one hundred thousand dollars to The St. George's Society. That would immediately give it a good financial standing and permit it to do a lot of urgent work.

Yesterday afternoon about 430 people going countrywards witnessed a pretty sight when they discerned a magnificent rainbow in the North-Western sky. It was quite a unique sight and several believed it portended a storm.

What could be done if The St. George's Society was well established with lots of funds and all those ladies and gentlemen, proud of their English origin, members, determined to make it the strongest and most useful organization in the country.

There is ice in the Tickle between Portugal Cove and Bell Island and the S. S. Mary from St. John's had to land mails Saturday as well as freight at the edge of the ice at the eastern end of Bell Island. Saturday and to-day a number of people crossed on the ice to and from Portugal Cove.

Mr. P. Prunty, whose home was destroyed by fire this morning, was about to proceed on a trip to the United States shortly. About 18 months ago he experienced a similar experience and lost a good deal of furniture, etc.

KYLE GIVES VESSEL SUPPLIES

The following message was received by the Department of Customs Saturday night:—

"S.S. Kyle en route from Louisbourg reports having met French vessel Mousquetaire 24 miles S.E. of St. John's 62 days from Bordeaux bound to St. Pierre with salt. Owing to Chronometer being 12 minutes out they had overrun St. Pierre and were not aware of their position. The vessel was short, having only one day's provisions and having no fuel nor oil. The Kyle gave her the necessary supplies and the schooner proceeded on her way."

The little vessel experienced the full force of the recent storms, and had her bulwarks smashed and the lifeboat badly damaged. The Captain and crew are glad to reach port after their trying trip.

The various Committees in charge of the Races have left no stone unturned to make this second Meet of the Horsemen's Association a Day to be remembered in St. John's, and as already mentioned above the citizens, who so loyally helped out the Committees last year, are again requested to do their best to see the track kept clear, so as to give the Horses and those taking charge of the event a chance to carry out the race successfully.

Remember the Watchword "Keep to the South of the Track, or on the North Bank." First Race starts at 2.20 sharp.
